The National Park Green Point System

The Green Point System awards points to visitors who collect discarded garbage or take back their own garbage from any of Korea's national parks. Points can be exchanged against the admission fee to a park's facilities or other products. (※ Participants' volunteer work hours will be recognized.)

How to Check and Use Green Points

Via the Korea National Parks Mountain-Climbing Information App or the Green Point website greenpoint.knps.or.kr

Korea National Parks' Visitor Reservation System

Juwangsan National Park

Designated as Korea's twelfth national park in 1976, Juwangsan National Park (105.595 km²) is widely acknowledged to be the best scenic spot in the southeastern region of Korea thanks to its breathtaking landscape of rocky peaks and magnificent deep valleys. Taehaengsan Mountain (933.1 m), Daedunsan Mountain (905 m), Myeongdongjae Pass (875 m), and Wanggeoam Rock (907.4 m) are connected in a horseshoe shape with Juwangsan Mountain (720.6 m) at the center, forming a kind of natural fortress at the heart of a beautiful mountain landscape. In terms of the local geology, the lava flows of 70 million years ago formed welded tuffs which show how this uniquely beautiful environment was created, making it one of the top three rocky mountain landscapes in Korea.
